

CONTENTS

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS ix

Introduction

Carving Japanese American Memory into Place 1

- 1 The Representation of the Japanese American Body in the Documentary Photography of Ansel Adams, Dorothea Lange, and Toyo Miyatake 13

- 2 Beyond the Camera and between the Words
Inserting Oneself into the Picture and into Japanese American (Art) History—Mine Okubo’s Citizen 13660 and the Power of Visual Autobiography 71

- 3 The Gendering of Historical Trauma in Wartime Films and the Disciplining of the Japanese American Body 93

- 4 Museums, Memory, and Manzanar
Contesting Our National Japanese American Past through a Politics of Visibility 119

- 5 Another Lesson in “How to Tell Your Friends Apart from the Japs”
The 1992 Winter Olympics Showdown between Kristi Yamaguchi of the United States and Midori Ito of Japan 145

Epilogue

Imag(in)ing the Multiracial Japanese American Body at the Turn of the Millennium 173

NOTES 195

BIBLIOGRAPHY 229

INDEX 243

ABOUT THE AUTHOR 276