

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	vii
1 Introduction	1
2 The “Negro Problem” and the “Yellow Peril”: Early Twentieth-Century America’s Views on Blacks and Asians	22
3 Estrangement on a Train: Race and Narratives of American Identity in The Marrow of Tradition and America through the Spectacles of an Oriental Diplomat	48
4 The Eaton Sisters Go to Jamaica	81
5 Quicksand and the Racial Aesthetics of Chinoiserie	114
6 Nation, Narration, and the Afro-Asian Encounter in W. E. B. Du Bois’s Dark Princess and Younghill Kang’s East Goes West	138
7 Coda	169
Notes	175
Bibliography	195
Index	209
About the Author	221